HATTER BURNED BY EXPLOSION

(Special from United Press.)
Norwalk, Aug. 14.—An over abundant supply of ambition nearly caused the death of Chris Christensen, a Greek about 22 years of age, while working in the shops of the Crofut & Knapp Company here to-day. He is now in the city hospital with his right side badly burned but without serious injury.

Christensen was at work on the sewing machine in which is a gas flame that burns the fuzz from the cloth. With the idea of accelerating the work he poured a can of crude oil over the machine. A slight explosion followed and the machine and hatter were enveloped in a mass of flames. His companions succeeded in extinguishing the blaze before it had a chance to spread and Christensen was taken to the hospital.

SALE OF POLI'S NEW THEATRE

Winter Property in Congress Street and Dorus Property in Main Street.

It will be announced in a few days officially that Sylvester Z. Poli has purchased property from the estate of the late A. Whittier a tract of land with a frontage in Congress street and with a depth of 140 feet and also the property of Mrs. Rose A. Dorus in Main street, about 150 feet south of Congress street, which will probably be the site for the new Poli playhouse, the Dorus property being for the site of the foyer building that will be used to tap the spacious lot at the rear.

An option upon the Winter property expires today and it was understood that the arrangements were made yesterday through the Anderson Agency to close the deal.

There has been much speculation as to where the new theatre would be located and numerous reports have been made that it would surely be on the Fox property at Congress street.

A reporter talked with the various merchants who hold the Fox property this afternoon and learned that the only concern which had fixed a figure for the theatre was the Empire Furniture Co. which occupies the only store on the Dorus property.

MASSACHUSETTS WAR GAME

(Special from United Press.)
Boston, Aug. 14.—With the greater portion of an invading army landed on the coast, the state militia is today engaged in a war game in the Dorus property in Main street.

Early today troops from New York, New Jersey, the District of Columbia and Connecticut, about 1,000 in all, were moved on to the Dorus property in Main street, where they are engaged in a war game.

The "Blue" or defending army, troops from all four towns where the "Minutemen" of 1776 were active, are rushing by wagon, by train and on foot to Bridgewater, the headquarters of Brig. General William A. Felt, from which point they will move east to the coast of South Roxbury and west toward Boston.

Anticipating an effort to attack Boston from the sea side before the war game is many hours old, every man of the coastwise defenses today is on the alert. The fort and the batteries are preparing to repel any attack by land.

It is not likely any attempt will be made until the official declaration of war at midnight tonight to attack Boston by sea, still when the sun goes down tonight the war game will be on. The "Red" army, which is composed of the regulars, the militia and the militia, are preparing to repel any attack by land.

The Pilgrim ship arrived at about the same time, brought the 22d Regiment of Engineers, N. Y. N. G. The 1st Battalion, field artillery, and Squadron A, cavalry. On this steamer also were the First and Second Companies, Signal Corps, N. Y. N. G. The steamer also carried the horse and gun of the field artillery and cavalry horse.

Governor Draper left Boston by auto today to inspect the maneuvers. He will be accompanied by the headquarters of General Felt and will remain in camp until the maneuvers are over. The steamer also carried the horse and gun of the field artillery and cavalry horse.

General Felt, who is in command of the maneuvers, is a native of New York and is a member of the Massachusetts militia. He is a member of the Massachusetts militia and is a member of the Massachusetts militia.

Troopers from Hartford, Manchester, Meriden, Rockville, Bristol and New Britain arrived about 3:30. About this time a heavy fog set in and the troops had the first real touch of campaigning. The men were packed on board the lighters Arnold and Brown and huddled together to keep warm in the chilly morning air. To "clock the last soldier embarked for the Meade which got under way about 8 a. m.

The steamer City of Taunton left the dock at 3 o'clock with a detachment of the Signal Corps, Troop A, all the horses of the cavalry and the cavalry and the gun carriages.

Pitchburg Mass., Aug. 14.—With the view of showing some uses of a war balloon corps during the war maneuvers in Massachusetts next week, Charles J. Glidden plans to ascend from here next Tuesday in the balloon Massachusetts and has invited Major General Wood to accompany him and the other officers of the corps.

The ascent will be made about noon and Mr. Glidden hopes to carry his big gas bag high enough to see the whole of the state. The ascent will be made about noon and Mr. Glidden hopes to carry his big gas bag high enough to see the whole of the state.

A part of the plan Mr. Glidden, who is familiar with the telegraphic code, requests observers on the surface who can use a mirror to reflect the sunlight flashes, sending the code word "73" (compliments and regards) or any short message which he may desire to convey. He wishes to reply with the usual "O. K. G."

SHERWOOD FINED FOR CONTEMPT
Was Witness In Case and Action of Court Occasioned Surprise.

Called to court to act as a witness and then to be fined $2 for contempt of court was the surprise that came to William Sherwood of Ogdun street, when he was called to the court to testify in the case of John T. Corby, charged with a breach of the peace and fined to tell all he knew about the matter.

In the West End near the junction of Fairfield avenue and State street there is a lot, which lies between the poor people of the city for truck gardens. Corby owns a patch of ground and while working there yesterday he was interrupted by Sergeant Hazel, who doubted if he had any right on the premises. He gave a good account of himself, but later on he was fined $2 for contempt of court.

When the case was called on, the judge said that he was not going to fine Corby, but that he was going to fine Sherwood $2 for contempt of court. Sherwood was surprised and did not know what to do.

The judge's fine occasioned much comment and unfavorable criticism. It was said that it was an injustice to a man who had brought about the arrest of a character that should be in the court. The judge's fine occasioned much comment and unfavorable criticism.

BREWERS ACTIVE; TAKE NO CHANCES

New Limitation Law Now In Effect Means Much to Wholesale Dealers

Under the new law limiting saloons in Connecticut to one to every 500 in population which became effective on Aug. 1, the brewers and wholesale houses who have had proprietary interests in saloons, have become active in order that their interests may not suffer as a consequence there has been a number of applications filed with the County Commissioners since the law became effective seeking the transfer of the licenses to others than those named in the original license.

Under the limitation law in any city where there are more saloons than at the ratio of one to 500 of the population no new licenses can be granted until such time as the population warrants it. And it is provided that whenever a liquor dealer is convicted and his license revoked as is the case when the court refuses a certificate following a conviction, no new license shall be issued in place of the one revoked.

For this reason the wholesalers want to have the places in which they are interested conducted by those they know and whom they can control. Why there are so many transfers being filed.

READ OF WIFE'S DEATH IN PRESS
New York Judge Went Away on Vacation Telling Only Wife Where He Would Be.

(Special from United Press.)
New York, Aug. 14.—City Magistrate Henry J. Furlong was to-day apprised of the death of his wife by the newspapers while a squad of searchers were dragging all of the summer resorts in the vicinity of New York. Furlong left on his vacation a week ago, telling no one but his wife where he was going. She was stricken with paralysis and died without revealing the secret and a long search failed to find the magistrate. He read of his wife's death in the papers and hurried home from Malwah, N. J.

YEGGMEN WRECK
TWO BANK SAFES
THEN FLY AWAY
(Special from United Press.)

Hope Valley, R. I., Aug. 14.—Yeggmens wrecked two safes at the First National Bank in this town early to-day, using 11 charges of nitroglycerine. They fled at once, taking with them only the small amount of money secured as the result of their raid.

WOMAN SAW MAN TALKING WITH MURDERED GIRL
(Special from United Press.)

Rochester, Aug. 14.—Another witness, whose story may prove valuable in running down the slayer of a 17-year-old Anna Schumacher a week ago, appears today in the person of Mrs. Anna Merkel. She says she saw the girl talking with the man in whose company Anna Schumacher left her sister's grave the day of the killing.

She says the man stood behind the girl as she worked at the grave and when she turned away he walked with her. She has furnished the police with a good description of the man.

With this exception the efforts of the police have resulted in practically no clue to the murderer. John Magee, a cemetery employee, was questioned at great length by the police today, but the officials say his examination revealed nothing important.

Edward Ewald, the suspect taken at North Rose, Wayne county, Thursday, was released after he had proved an alibi.

CHINAMAN DIES IN LOCAL HOSPITAL
He Will Be Buried Monday, Rev. G. K. Nicholson Officiating.

Joe King, Celestial, who conducted the laundry at 448 Broad street, died at the local hospital yesterday evening after an illness of two weeks with pneumonia. The remains will be entombed in Park cemetery on Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

The Chinese generally prepare a big feast for the funeral of a man and all that goes with it, which they place on the grave of the departed, in the same manner as floral offerings. The Chinese have been until their advent into the other world.

Rev. George W. Nicholson, pastor of the First church, will have charge of the funeral services.

BIG ANTI-LEE LISTS

The indications are that 75 per cent of the voters of the city will be enrolled upon the primary lists of the Democratic and Republican parties before the registration closes at 9 o'clock today. There are 13,000 electors upon the voting lists. Thirteen were enrolled upon big party primary lists in 1908. It is estimated at noon to-day there will be 1,250 new enrollments.

Registrars Rooney and Lounsbury declare that the heaviest registration since the city was first organized with the office. The indications are that the enrollment on the Republican side will be somewhat larger than on the Democratic side.

The registrars will not begin the registration until after 9 o'clock this evening. It will be four or five days before the new primary lists will be completed.

The first choice of the anti-Lee workers is said to be Harbor Master Charles H. Morris, who will be formally elected whenever he consents to announce that he will make the run. If Morris will not run they will take somebody else. Their motto appears to be, "Get rid of Lee."

HELD FOR ASSAULT
(Special from United Press.)

Winsted, Aug. 14.—In the town court to-day the case of Robert Lanza, a man who is charged with committing a felonious assault on Mrs. John W. Whitney was continued until Monday. The bond of $5,000 was not changed.

AUTO AMBULANCE GOES TO BE OVERHAULED.
During the two weeks vacation of Driver Aubrey Burdison of the Loco ambulance, that vehicle will be sent to the Locomobile company for a general overhauling. While the ambulance is out of commission the two horse drawn vehicles will be used, one driven by Dave Jack and the other by an employee of the Lakeview home. The two are being used, in case a call should come in while the other wagon is out.

GUINEA HENS GIVE ALARM

Terrify South Norwalk Horse Thieves When Dogs Are Still.

South Norwalk, Conn., Aug. 14.—Guinea hens are to be substituted for electrical burglar alarm appliances in most of the handsome country homes in this section. The pioneer in the movement is Alfred H. Hartog, a New Yorker, whose summer home is in East avenue, this city. If it had not been for six guinea hens which he is raising, he would have lost his best team, a handsome pair of grays, and also two sets of harness and an expensive carriage.

Yesterday morning the grays had cut all the electric burglar alarm wires. They also had chloroformed the watchdog and placed pillow boots on the feet of the horses to muffle their tread as they were led out of the Hartog grounds. Everything that twentieth century horse thieves could do to get away with the horses without arousing the Hartogs and their neighbors had been done.

The thieves just were about to drive away when one of them, who had gone back into the barn to look for something, stumbled against the guinea roost. Instantly there was a racket that could be heard half a mile away. One guinea started to cackle and the others joined in. The chorus sounded something like a giant burglar rattle would sound. The Hartogs heard their neighbors heard it, and in a few seconds the entire East avenue section was aroused. Houses shook and many men and women leaped from their beds. Lights began to gleam in many windows. The horse thieves were frightened so badly that they forgot all about driving the grays away. They took to their heels, and were seen vaulting hedges and fences in their wild efforts to put as many miles as they could between themselves and the flock of guinea.

One wealthy man was leaning out his back window when the two horses started to drive the grays away. "Damn a guinea, anyway," he heard one of the men say.

Hartog discovered that the thieves had cut the burglar alarm wires and that the grays were going to drive the grays away. The watchdog was found in the stable sleeping peacefully under the influence of chloroform. The grays were a gift by a farmer to the Hartog children.

POWER IN THE CITY

You had received bids on the South Main street job and that they were too high," said Col. Rogers. "If you did not know what we were going to do, it is pretty weak to come in at this time and say you did not know what we intended to do. The work was not done. We would rather that the contract for the city's work and the railroad work go to the same contractor."

He said that the company might favor the city taking the work as the director of public works and the contractor might not be able to agree as they had done in Golden Hill street where the yardage had been divided up between the city and the contractor.

Mr. Elwell opened the 10 foot center proposition again, saying that the company had to wait for that question to be settled by the Common Council. Now he said that he understood that it would be impossible for the railroad to secure any more Fairmont brick as the company was sold out.

James H. O'Rourke told Mr. Elwell that what the commission wanted the company to realize was that it wanted South Main street paved as soon as possible.

Mr. Elwell then informed the commission that the city of Hartford had ordered that the work be done by the city and that it was to be paid on 10 foot centers as a matter of safety.

"There you go about those ten foot centers," said Col. Rogers. "Can't you tell us when you will pave South Main street?"

Mr. Elwell said that he thought it was a good idea to fight for 10 foot centers because he believed in them. Then again, he said, "I forgot to tell you that the city has ordered that the work be done by the city and that it was to be paid on 10 foot centers as a matter of safety."

The engineer said he would like to know who was going to do the city part of the work. The president said he thought it was a good idea to fight for 10 foot centers because he believed in them. Then again, he said, "I forgot to tell you that the city has ordered that the work be done by the city and that it was to be paid on 10 foot centers as a matter of safety."
